BATTLE FORECAST IN RAIL BUILDING

S. P. Action At San Mateo Is Thought To Be Aimed At Extension Plan of Western Pacific

The first move in what is thought to be a great battle between two great railroads was made this week, when the Southern Pacific began laying rails on ties near Leslie in this county. The road being thrown down by the Southern Pacific is said to be an attempt to block the construction of the peninsula line of the Western Pacific whose application is now before the Interstate Commerce Commission for a line from this city to San Francisco following the bay shore.

Late last Saturday afternoon a crew of Southern Pacific laborers began laying ties on top of the grass and spiking rails to them. The track began in the field and also ended there without any apparent attempt to connect it to any existing track. The ties were laid without ballast or without leveling.

On Wednesday the Western Pacific secured from Judge Frank H. Kerrigan a restraining order upon the Southern Pacific requiring that company to appear in court on Monday and explain its action.

In the complaint filed with Judge Kerrigan by the Western Pacific it stated that the Western Pacific has agreed with property owners from San Francisco to Redwood City for rights of way, and awaits only the action of the Interstate Commerce Commission to begin actual construction of its line.

The petition recites that on March 23, the defendant company began surreptitiously the construction of what is described as a "short strip of unattached railroad." It is also stated that the track does not serve any useful purpose, and that from the manner of its construction it is apparent that it is not intended to serve any purpose. It is alleged that the track is built merely to hamper the Western Pacific in extending its line along the peninsula.

The Western Pacific officials have expressed the opinion that it is the plan of the Southern Pacific to construct a number of such spur tracks along the peninsula between Redwood City and San Francisco across the line of the proposed Western Pacific extension in order to delay the construction of that road.

The Southern Pacific will meet with difficulties, however, it is predicted, for if it should, which is not likely, secure a legal victory over the Western Pacific it will meet the opposition of the State of California, as the track now being laid crosses the right of way of the Bayshore highway which is now under construction. It will also meet with court action by the city of San Mateo, as it is said that the track crosses several sewer rights of way held by that city.

The action of the court on Monday will be watched with great interest in this county, as it is believed that the extension of the Western Pacific will usher in an era of great industrial development.

STATUS OF SCHOOLS STUDIED

Miss Abbott Talks On County Needs At Meeting

Miss Pansy Jewett Abbott, county superintendent of schools of this county attended a meeting called by the San Francisco-San Mateo consolidation commitntee this week. The meeting was one of a series being held to consider various phases of the proposed consolidation of this county and San Francisco. This meeting was devoted to a consideration of the effect which the consolidation would have on the school districts.

The meeting was attended by Miss Abbott Joseph Marr Gwinn, superintendent of schools of San Francisco; Alfred H. Campion of the San Francisco Bureau of Governmental Research and by members of the committee composed of representatives of both this coutny ad San Francisco.

In the absence of Chairman Coldwell, Vice-Chairman Maillard presided over the meeting, which was the second meeting for consideration of the subject of education as consolidation would probably affect it.

Superintendent Gwinn outlined further his conception of what the consolidation of Sa Francisco and San Mateo counties would entail in an educational way. He stated that he considered as feasible the plan to merge the school systems of the two counties under one centralized administration. There should be proper represetation, he stated, from the urban communities of San Mateo county upo the Board of Education, which would administer the consolidated system of schools. Superintendent Gwinn stated that in the administration of the San Francisco School Department he has seven deputy superintedents. Full power rests with the superintendent to assig the deputies to their respective duties. The present set-up of deputies could be changed in accordance with new conditions under consolidation. Superintendent Gwinn felt there should ot be an assignment of one deputy for the whole of San Mateo county since this would create too definite a boundary line, geographically, for proper administration. He stated there would be no difficulty in working out a course of study under consolidation since this matter is under State control, with the same regulations applying to San Mateo county as apply to San Francisco. There could also be an easy adjustment of the difference in the plan of appointing teachers, which, in San Francisco, as far as elementary creation of an eligible list for such schools are concerned, involves the appointment.

Miss Abbott stated that the plan as outlined by Superintendent Gwin seemed to be feasible but that it was impossible to state what the attitude toward it would be of those educators of San Mateo county whose identity would be more or less lost under consolidation. In some ways, she stated, centralized administration seemed to be the proper procedure, but the question is one which requires considerable more thought because, after all, it is the problem of the people of San Mateo county and acceptance or rejection depends upon them. Miss Abbott added that the powers and duties of the San Mateo County Board of Education, members of which are appointed by the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors, are entirely different than those of the Board of Education of San Francsco. There are no city school systems in San Mateo county, all school being under county auspices.

OH! WHY DID THEY SELL KILLARNEY

Judge Buck yesterday appointed Arthur Rose Vincent administrator of the estate of Maude Chase Bourn Vincent, his wife, and fixed his bond at $200,000. The estate is valued in excess of one million dollars. Mrs. Vincent was the only child of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Bourn of San Mateo. Bourn was formerly the president of the Spring Valley Water Company. His father was the discoverer of the famous Empire mine of Grass Valley, now in charge of Fred Nobs formerly of Redwood City.

Vincent, the noted Irish barrister, who petitioned for letters of administration, gave his answers in response to his attorneys' quesitons in a clear, distinct and decisive manner, showing no signs of brogue. He is a tall handsome man, with a sharp sharp piercing blue eye and a high forehead, denoting intelligence. His head is crowned with an abundance of iron gray hair. He is a distinguished looking man, one who would be pointed out in a crowd as extremely good looking.

SHIPPERS FAVOR HARBOR PROJECT FOR THIS CITY

Replying to your letter of March 22nd, it is our opinion that the building of a public wharf as you have indicated will place you in a position to compete with various Bay ports such as Oakland, Alameda, and Richmond, Calif.

E. B. Hinman, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, received this week a number of letters from shipping companies operating around the bay. Almost all are uqualifiedly in favor of the project of developing the harbor here and offer every assistance in developing such a project. One from the McCormick Steamship Company is typical of practically all received. It follows:

May we suggest that on the nature of the facilities, the type of construction, and the method of operation, that you permit us to confer with you in order that we may offer you the benefit of our long experience in terminal operation. You do not desire an expensive terminal project where less expensive facilities will accomplish the results. Further, in order to attract steamship lines to your terminals, you must make the charges against the vessels practically free, or not exceeding charges as in effect, for example, at San Francisco.

Inasmuch as we at the present time are handling in excess of 50,000 tons yearly from the plant of the Pacific Portland Cement Company at Redwood City, we would be very glad upon your further inquiry to have a discussion with you on the proposed terminal site.

Yours very truly,
McCORMICK STEAMSHIP Co.,

Crime Commission And Parents Body Clash in Senate

By ESTO BROUGHTON

SACRAMENTO, Mar. 29—(CNB)—What is your "IQ"?

No, this isn't a typographical error, but a question the teachers and psychological experts of San Mateo county may propound to your Johnny and Mary when they start the next school term.

For "IQ" stands for intelligence quotient and under the Baker bills, being considered by the State Senate this week, tests may be given to all school children from the elementary grades up through the high school and part-time classes.

These tests include, "individual examinations and tests of ability and aptitude given by persons qualified to measure and grade intelligence and determine aptitude " according to the language of the measure introduced by Senator C. C. Baker and sponsored by the Crime Commission.

Lively protests have been lodged against these bills by parents who object to the ear-marking of their children either as "dumb" or "precocious."

"You might discourage a Lindbergh, as a child by dubbing him stupid," challenged Mrs. Robert Armstrong Dean, representing the Parents Public School Protective League, "Colonel Charles Lindbergh was not a bright child in school. Few geniuses have been."

The California Crime Commission, on the other hand, maintains that the way to cure the criminal is to catch him young, and for this reason advocates the examination of all school children to find the potential criminal.

James A. Johnston, former warden at San Quentin, and now chairman of the Crime Commission, defended the invasion of the schools in their search for a crime cure, on the theory that early apprehension of those with criminal tendencies would make it possible to avert such atrocities as the Hickman kidnaping murder.

A brisk battle on the floor is forecast with the Senate apparently evenly divided between old fashioned ideas of letting youngsters grow up unhampered like "Topsy," and new fangled notions of having children psycho-analyzed and mentally and morally finger-printed.

After the marriage of the pretty Miss Bourn and the Irish lawyer some years ago, William Bourn purchased an estate in Ireland, consisting of the famous Lakes of Killarney, in the County Kerry and presented it to his daughter. The sale was presented by the Irish people and their poet gave vent to his feelings in a most delightful poem entitled, "Oh, Why Did They Sell Killarney." It is one of the classics of the English language and a decade ago was heard in all places of entertainment.

WHO WOULD STEAL A CHECK BOOK?

Your check book is a key that can unlock every dollar in your bank account. Yet no one would take the trouble to steal it—for no one can use it but you. Without your signature the checks in it are valueless.

GREEN FEED FOR GOSLINGS HELPS

Tender Grass Should Fill Principal Part of Ration.

An important item in the care of young goslings is to keep them warm and quiet for the first few days and an equally important item in their feeding is to start them out on green feed, preferably tender grass.

For about two days after hatching goslings show little inclination to do anything but keep warm and quiet. They may come from under the hen and nibble at whatever they may see that is edible. They are most partial to grass and tender plants, but will take a little mash if it is offered and will dabble their bills in the water.

After that the gosling begins to take more interest in affairs and will feed industriously for short periods, always prefering short, tender grass and weeds for its diet, with mash and other substantial feed that may be offered in small amounts. A common mistake is to feed green food as an accessory to grain feed when it should form the principal part of the ration with mash and grain as an accessory to the green stuff.

Goslings may be brooded with hens or in small colony brooders or with geese. In the latter case they will get along very well if left to the old birds, the keeper supplying a soft feed of grain once or twice a day as the appetites of the goslings may dictate. This is true only when the range is ample and furnishes good grazing. The geese which are mated with one gander will usually raise their broods in one group, the gander being watchful over his whole family.

When the goslings are brooded by hens or brooders they require close attention while small. They should be confined for the first few days in pens which will keep them near the hen or brooder. These pens can be made of narrow wire netting or boards and placed on sod. When the goslings clean off the grass they should be moved.

Egg-Eating Habit Among Hens Hard to Control

The egg-eating habit is usually caused by the hens getting hold of a soft-shelled egg that happens to be dropped on the ground somewhere in plain sight. They get to rolling it about, finally breaking it, and the trouble has started. The next thing is to get it stopped. Sometimes it may be stopped by making a slight break in the side of an egg, running a part of the white and then inserting a good dose of cayenne pepper, closing the hole with adhesive tape or court-plaster. Drop this out among the guilty ones and see what they do with it and how it affects them. Another way is to heat an egg to the boiling point, crack slightly and place out for them.

In case neither of these work, a plan that will be effective is to put a false bottom of burlap in your nest box just a few inches from the real bottom, tacking it around the sides, then cut a cross in the center of the burlap large enough for the eggs to drop through. They will go down out of sight and trouble. It may be that at the start of this dirty work you may be able to locate one leader, and taking her out to herself the trouble in the flock will be ended.

Poultry Facts

Keep hens ridded of worms.

* * *

The air in a chicken house should be continually moving at a fairly slow rate.

* * *

The first three weeks of the life of a chick is recognized as one of essential importance.

* * *

Baby chicks will digest a crop full of mash in from two to two and a half hours and are then ready for another feed.

* * *

The breeding turkey should receive a good laying mash along with scratch grain.

* * *

The turkeys should not be fed straight alfalfa meal or alfalfa steam meal because it is too bulky to be handled by their digestive systems.

* * *

It is generally recognized by poultry disease specialists that chickens have remarkable resistance against most diseases, and the class of troubles commonly spoken of as colds and roup is no exception to this statement.

* * *

The first symptoms of colds among a flock are sneezing and loss of appetite and activity by those infected.

* * *

Liver troubles in hens are difficult to treat, as they are seldom discovered until the bird becomes sick and dies suddenly.

* * *

Hens don't need and can't eat such feeds as corncobs and shucks. Save the corn-and-cob meal for the cows. Give the hens whole corn, or preferably cracked corn. They'll lay more eggs.

* * *

Keep clean water before the laying hens. About 65 per cent of the egg is water.

* * *

Ordinarily the mashes and scratch grain rations recommended for chickens will be found very satisfactory for turkeys.

* * *

Many poultry men are turning to turkeys as a means of diversifying their poultry enterprise and as a source of additional income at what is ordinarily the slack income season in egg production.

It May Be Urgent

When your Children Cry for It

Castoria is a comfort when Baby is fretful. No sooner taken than the little one is at ease. If restless, a few drops soon bring contentment. No harm done, for Castoria is a baby remedy, meant for babies. Perfectly safe to give the youngest infant; you have the doctors' word for that! It is a vegetable product and you could use it every day. But it's in an emergency that Castoria means most. Some night when constipation must be relieved—or colic pains—or other suffering. Never be without it; some mothers keep an extra bottle, unopened, to make sure there will always be Castoria in the house. It is effective for older children, too; read the book that comes with it.

When Food Sours

Lots of folks who think they have "indigestion" have only an acid condition which could be corrected in five or ten minutes. An effective anti-acid like Phillips Milk of Magnesia soon restores digestion to normal.

Phillips does away with all that sourness and gas right after meals. It prevents the distress so apt to occur two hours after eating. What a pleasant preparation to take! And how good it is for the system! Unlike a burning dose of soda—which is but temporary relief at best—Phillips Milk of Magnesia neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

Next time a hearty meal, or too rich a diet has brought on the least discomfort, try—

Statement of Gov. Young On State Highway Policy

THE resolution adopted by unanimous vote in both houses of the legislature, dealing with extensions to our highway system, in my opinion is the most important contribution that that body could make to our state highways. It establishes a policy and constitutes a precedent by which future additions to the state highway system must depend upon their ability to qualify for a place in that system upon the basis of merit as determined by and after expert study and investigation.

The legislature is to be congratulated upon its willingness to put the ultimate benefit of the state highway system before the very natural desire of its members to see, included in the system, at this time, roads in which they are particularly and immediately interested.

The resolution should and will promote policy to govern extensions to the state highway system, but it also assures a progressive correction of the present unbalanced mileage of the secondary road system in the northern and the southern districts as set up in the Breed Bill. This lack of mileage balance constituted a source of irritation and complaint in the south.

The resolution should and will promotoe state unity and statewide support in the future and continued development of our highway system.

Our American Prosperity

SO rapid and unprecedented has been the growth of American prosperity that some observers have feared that we are being carried along on a wave that must shortly break, dropping us on the hard sands of diversity.

But facts make it evident that our prosperity is no ephemeral thing, but the natural fruit of our development.

In 50 years per capita wealth has increased from $870 to nearly $3000. Bank deposits have increased 25 times and the value of agricultural produce four times. It is estimated that 15,000,000 people now own securities in our industries. American business of all kinds can point to an unparalleled record of achievement.

This is no "paper prosperity" we are experiencing, but definite progress that can be measured either in dollars or in the scale of a greater and happier civilization. At the base of it all is a social and economic system dedicated to liberty and the rights of the individual, that is the envy of the world.

Sniffing the Breeze

ABOUT this time of the year in ancient Egypt there was a custom observed which appears to have gained universal recognition even to this day, and bids fair to be continued as long as the sun shines and human beings live. This was on the 22nd of March, according to our calendar when a festival was celebrated known as Noruz Sultani or sniffing the breeze.

The spring with its flowers had come, warm balmy winds wafted across a land, which was alternately parched under the burning sun or held in the icy grip of winter. For a short space it was spring and the Egyptian celebrated and sniffed the breeze. What would ancient Egypt have done on such days as we enjoy here.

What a glorious world we live in. And how fortunate are those who may live in such a place as this Santa Clara valley of ours, glorious at all times, but especially so in the spring.

With orchards in bloom, green grass fresh and odorous, wild flowers on every road side, we wish that we, like those of ancient Egypt, might make a holiday and sniff the breeze.

Thou sweet Well for him who thirsteth in the desert; it is closed to him who speaks, but is open to him who is quiet. When he who is silent comes lo, he finds the Well.—Book of the Dead.

Keep It A Refuge

WE are in receipt of a communication from a San Francisco man who strongly disapproves of the proposed creation of a game refuge of the land of the Spring Valley Water Company which is to be acquired by San Francisco. Among reasons why he does not approve of the proposed game refuge he says, "Twenty-five thousand acres is too large an area to set aside as a refuge before careful investigation has been made to determine its desirability and necessity. One thousand acres we might approve, but not twenty-five thousand."

We differ with the writer of this letter. We do not believe that the Spring Valley property is too large an area for a game refuge. For years now the property has been kept as a refuge by the Spring Valley Water Company, and every care has been taken for the protection of the wild life. When the property is acquired by San Francisco, some means must be had for continuing this work.

It is not as though it were proposed to take twenty-five thousand acres now being hunted over and create from it a game refuge. The land has not been hunted on for years, and it will work a hardship on no one if the present status of the property is continued. If thrown open for hunting, the wild life will be exterminated, fire menace will be increased, and the purity of the water will be endangered.

We would favor a policy which would maintain the land in the same condition in which it is now held by the water company, and has been held for many years.

THESE IKE WALTON DAYS

By J. H. NEUSTADT

NOW that the first of May is approaching when the state permits every man woman and child, who affords two dollars for a license, to cast his fly or dangle a worm for a finney beauty, it may be pertinent to talk about trout and how to get them, of course, assuming you are either an expert or can drop your lure where the speckled beauties lay. The amateur starts with enthusiasm, his anticipation is great regardless of past failures and his ingenuity taxed to explain later, the conditions that of wild life, a student of the habits of the game he pursues, he knows where to cast and how to cast to imitate nature, the kind of fly that is in season, and with dexterity of wrist, drops it into the stream just as if the natural fly had lighted there on his own account.

Of course a good outfit is essential but results cannot be obtained by simply spending money. Select your outfit with a view of getting the best sport according to the size and kind of fish you are after. The kind suitable for a steelhead or a large rainbow would be unsuitable for a small mountain stream where a seven inch catch is the maximum. However where cleverly handled, the greatest thrill comes with a light and delicate outfit even when a big fellow is securely hooked.

Small trout in fast water requires a quick strike but it is difficult to get sufficient speed without force out of proportion to the size of the quarry and this increases the difficulty of hooking.

Of course, fish sometimes hook themselves, but the amateur that depends on these accidents rarely has many fish for his day's activities.

My idea is, no matter how unskillful the angler, encourage him, induce him to try again, it takes him and frequently the family into the country; it educates him into an appreciation of wild life, clean sport, good health and good citizenship, and this is one of the vital purposes of the San Mateo County Fish and Game Club, any member of which will gladly help and instruct a beginner.

Federal Game Reserves

The Federal Government is setting a fine example in passing legislation favorable to the preservation of wild life.

A measure has just passed the senate embracing a ten year program establishing refuges to care for migratory game birds.

The appropriation will be on a sliding scale beginning with $75,000 for the first year, with larger amounts for the second and third years and $1,000,000 per annum the remaining seven years.

The fact that the expenditure will be made in virtually every state in the country shows that the people through their representatives are alert to the great value of preserving the nucleus of a natural gift that affords food and recreation to millions of its citizens.

The effect of conservation is aptly shown in statistics just issued by the state of South Dakota. Pheasants were not native birds but were planted there but a few years ago, and yet in a single season 2,000,000 fell to sportsmen's guns and the capital breeding stock not dimished. Including venison and wild ducks the total weight dressed was five million pounds. Estimating a dressed steer at 500 pounds it would take ten thousand to equal in weight the game secured in the single state in one year. Consider the forty eight states and try to visualize the food value to say nothing of the sport and out of door life. State and federal governments realize the inestimable value of protection and propagation and are educating the public to realize it, too.

COUNTY DISCLAIMS ALL RESPONSIBILITY FOR CRASH OF AUTO BRIDGE

Wooden Structure Was Never Accepted By San Mateo County As Result of 41 Year Dispute About Location

All responsibility for the failure of the wooden bridge which connects this county with Santa Clara county back of Stanford, was disclaimed this week by county officials. The bridge collapsed last Thursday, under the weight of a large sight-seeing bus loaded with passengers. Several persons were injured slightly.

A study of the situation was made this week by Supervisors Hickey and Francis of this county who found that the bridge had never been accepted by this county. The bridge was built 41 years ago. At that time the board of supervisors of Santa Clara county officially abandoned the road which connected with the site of a former bridge about 100 yards from the site of the present bridge.

This action by the supervisors of Santa Clara county was opposed by the board of supervisors of this county, as was also the change in location of the bridge, and the board of this county has never abandoned the old road leading to the site of the former bridge, nor accepted the present bridge nor a road leading to it.

Since that time the bridge has been a subject for dispute, and this county would expend money neither for the maintenance of the bridge nor the road conecting with it. The road connecting with the bridge in Santa Clara county was constructed by Stanford University in order to divert traffic from the campus.

Money has been available for many years in a separate fund by this county for constructing a new bridge, but the supervisors would not spend it for a bridge at the present location. Recently an agreement was reached and a new bridge was to be erected shortly at the original site.

NATIONAL REALTY HEAD TO ADDRESS MEETING AT EMERALD LAKE CLUB

Harry H. Culver Is Making Extensive Tour By Aeroplane To Meet All Realty Boards of the Country

Harry H. Culver, of Culver City and Los Angeles, California president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, will address the Redwood City District Real Estate Board at a group meeting of real estate boards to be held in this city on April 3.

The visit is part of a year-long speaking tour undertaken to bring into the closest possible co-operation local and national action in the present notable movement within the business of real estate for mastery of the economic principles governing real estate use and establishment of sound standards of real estate practice. Direct contact between the local board and the National Association is expected to aid in bringing together the viewpoints of various states and communities for unified advance in legislation of vital importance to real estate.

Of first importance in this program is the growing movement for a modernization of present state tax systems, most of them framed in a period when "intangible" assets, now so large a part of the national wealth, were practically unknown, and most of which therefore make no provision for the classification of property for tax purposes.

The national realtor president is emphasizing the need for complete union of strength between realtors and property owners looking toward a simplification of the laws governing real estate transfer, the more equitable taxation for real estate, and establishment of fundamental facts upon which the base stable real estate use.

Culver's circuit of visits to member boards is being made by airplane under what is believed to be the most compact schedule of meetings ever to be arranged by a business group. In the circuit, which has been grouped into five tours, criss-crossing the country from east to west coasts a number of times and dipping into Canada and Mexico, he expects, through group meetings, to confer with practically every one of the Association's 633 member boards.

The itinerary has been carefully scheduled so as to utilize air transportation to the fullest in making time savings. The undertaking as a matter of fact, is expected to make airplane history and business history, since it will be a longer sustained tour than has heretofore been made for a like purpose by an individual. It is the first time, so far as known when a business association executive has used air transportation on such a scale to make possible a complete personal contact between its executive head and its local organizations.

In order to conserve time and make his schedule as efficient as possible, Culver has established his office in the Stinson-Detroiter six passenger cabin monoplane which he has purchased for the year's undertaking.

Aimee To Answer Only Yes or No At Senate Trial

SACRAMENTO, Mar. 29—(CNB)—Aimee Semple McPherson's dramatic narrative style of testimony charged with emotion and radiant with the evangelist's personality, will be peremptorily "wet-blanketed" when she appears as a state witness in the Judge Carlos S. Hardy impeachment trial here April 8.

Such, at least, is the announcement made by Assemblyman Walter Little, chief of the legislative board of prosecutors, in explaining the prosecution's unexepected decision to subpoena the famous evangelist, rather than allow her to be called by the defense.

Mrs. McPherson, in testifying relative to the $2500 Hardy check payment and other incidents bearing on the four articles of impeachment, will be restricted to answering questions propounded by the prosecutors, Little emphasized.

The stern injunction, "Answer Yes or No," will cut short any attempt by the woman evangelist to launch into a running narrative of her own version of Judge Hardy's participation in the sequel of the kidnaping, it was declared.

All Tax Measures Sidetracked For Two Years Study

SACRAMENTO, Mar. 29—(CNB)—No drastic taxation program will be enacted at this session of the legislature, it appears today, with both houses prepared to continue the tax study for two years more.

Not only the equitableness of state taxation but also problems in relation to the common tax payers in San Mateo county will be studied by the new Legislative Taxation Committee proposed in the Adams-Nelson Resolutions.

Sewer District Is Planned For Northern Towns

Robert Klassen of this city is preparing plans for a joint sewer district to be presented to the board of supervisors at its next meeting. The district will include Lomita Park, San Bruno and a portion of South San Francisco. By the acquisition and improvement act of 1925, the board of supervisors is able to form such a district for the various incorporated districts included.

BAD CHECK CHARGE LANDS MAN IN JAIL

Fred H. Kanak, 58, a foundryman of South San Francisco, was sentenced to a term of six months in the county jail this week by Justice of the Peace Edward Farrell on a charge of passing a bad check. Kanak was arrested on March 18 by Chief of Police Louis Belloni.

Sacramento — State of California will disburse $106,432,790 for highway purposes in two fiscal years extending from July 1, 1929 to June 30, 1931.

Legislative Bills Bring Legislators Bills, If Not Money

By CLEM WHITAKER

SACRAMENTO, Mar. 29—(CNB)—Mayhap there's some honor in being a legislator, but this fact can be stated on unimpeachable authority—there's no money in it!

If in doubt, ask your neighborhood lawmaker.

Bills are piling up in Sacramento and billfolds are thinning—domestic as well as legislative.

And the end is not yet, for one of the longest legislative sessions in history looms ahead, according to the word that was passed 'round among the distrait members today.

May 18 has been tentatively set by leaders of the two houses as the probable date of adjournment.

Consider then, the plight of the poor but honest solon! His personal bills can not be killed in committee. Neither can they be sent to the governor. Nor can they be charged to the state, for the constitution forbids it.

Yet, he is chose to serve, and serve he must, let the rent slips fall where they may.

Contrary to popular belief, the longer a legislator works the less he earns, considered on a net basis. The salary is $1200 per year and out of that must come campaign costs and all of his expenses, except for railroad fares to Sacramento and return.

Such is the dilemma of the senators and assemblymen, with new issues new bills and new investigations piling up to prolong the agony.

The -state's problem—and indirectly the taxpayers—is also becoming complicated this session, it was admitted today, and here's the public side of this question:

The 1929 session, due to the Judge Hardy impeachment trial and myriad other unusual matters which have bobbed up, promises to be runner-up to the longest session in history—second only to the meeting of 1854, which continued for 110 actual working days.

The 1927 session, comparatively short with but 85 working days, cost $362,263.29.

This year's barrage of lawmaking is expected to run about 100 days, with many investigations adding to the usual expenditure roll. Judge Hardy's trial alone will cost the state $15,000, it is estimated, while $5,000 was allocated for the so-called "cement trust" probe and a $30,000 appropriation is pending for a legislative tax study.

"This," you may exclaim, "is the limit!" But it isn't. The limit is $600 per day—the maximum allowed under the constitution—and the number of days is limited only by the ability of the lawmakers to meet their personal bills.

Santa Ana Canyon highway being widened and improved from Orange County line toward Corona.

HOW TO LIVE LONGER

By JOHN CLARENCE FUNK

OVERWORKING THE SUN

A MAN and his wife recently returned from their vacation. No one could have doubted the fact for one moment, for they were both victims of the "sunburn complex." Complex is used advisedly, for they were repeaters. It happened every summer to them. People, you understand, must in this fashion be told that they had been away!

It seems strange that so many of us will studiously avoid the direct rays of the sun for three hundred and fifty days and then just as studiously stick our heads, shoulders and legs into it for the other fifteen. But that is exactly what happens.

Some are even so foolish as to sit hatless on the hotel porch deliberately growing a "tan." To these misguided individuals there appears to be something almost sacramental in permitting the sun to do its worst to them. Or are they merely looking for the undeniable proof of their sojourn?

Sun is almost synonymous with life. But it must be respected and properly used if the best results are to be obtained. While wonderful cures have been effected by utilizing the sun's direct power on the human body, it has taken the scientific watchfulness and care of expert physicians to achieve these results. And it will continue to do so. The sun handled by experts is one thing, and mishandled by seashore excursionists quite another one.

Sunburn is no joke. It is painful as most of us know; and can most effectively take the joy out of one's vacation if, indeed, it does not actually make one ill.

Under the excitement and lure of the sad sea waves, many are prone to forget that the sun is shining until they are scorched. But by that time the harm is done.

Fifteen minutes is long enough for the first dip if the sun is out. Indeed, a quarter of an hour out of the water and the same time in it, is all the bathing anyone should have until the skin is pigmented or tanned.

Why come home all "done up" and miserable because of this sun business? Permit people to assume that you are honest about your trip to the shore even though you cannot exhibit a peeling or blistered epidermis as proof of the fact.

A vacation primarily should mean a change in environment, recreation and health. Any outing that does not fulfill these requirements is not giving you your money's worth or doing you much good.

Fresh air? Indeed, yes. Exercise? Plenty of that too. Amusements of one kind or another? That's what you go for. But sunburn? Well, the next time you go to the mountain, lake or shore, join the sensible minority and take your sun in homeopathic doses. Thus you will display unusual wisdom and in addition have the best vacation of your life. Don't become too friendly with Old King Sol—the stingeree!

USE THE BRUSH

IT'S coming back, they say. But even if it were not, there is still plenty of it left on women's heads and on the pates of many men, to justify a bit of information on the subject.

If one were to believe the baldheaded barbers, one has but to dash on a bit of this and that and behold one's hair will remain forever. And more than that, dandruff will be gone!

One does not blame the tonsorial artist or his trade sister, the beauty specialist, for their suggestions. Business is business. As a matter of fact, a dandruff remover once in a while is a good thing. The alcohol in it thoroughly cleanses the head. It is excellent sanitation.

However, while barber and beauty-shop lotions destroy and remove dandruff, they only remove a particular crop. For, like the bad penny, it is sure to turn up again.

Many are prone to coddle their hair. They wash it with soap and water frequently and between times pour on tonics. When it comes to the head even the good old standby, soapsuds, can be overdone.

Dandruff always develops in a more or less degree upon a healthy head that possesses hair. It is not a sign of disease. True, there are some unusual conditions causing dandruff that need the attention and care of a physician; but these are easily recognized. For the general run, however, the practice of gently rubbing the scalp with a stiff brush is a most effective, quick and inexpensive way of massaging the head and keeping it free from the ever-active process of dandruff development.

Therefore, buy all the hair beauty you want to buy. Use barber-shop lotions and soap and water in moderation. But when you have done all this, don't forget the brush!

The city of Pisa, Italy, was probably of Etruscan origin. It became subject to Rome in 180 B. C. At the height of its greatness, in the Twelfth century, it is thought to have had a population of 150,000. In the Sixteenth century its population had dwindled to about 8,500. # Easter

Silently, yet swiftly,
The pulsing breath of spring
Is lending life and beauty
To every living thing;
Opening bud and blossom
Along each walk and way,
Spreading gladness and delight
To greet the Easter day.

Tinting skies with sapphire,
Streams with silver bright,
Sending little winds abroad
Through the day and night,
Coaxing fragrant blossoms
From the bursting sod,
Crying out a welcome
To the risen God.

Prompting feathered songsters
On each leafy bough
To herald out the tidings:
"Spring is with us now!
Let your hearts be happy,
Throw all cares away,
Join in nature's symphony
On this Easter day."

Real Lesson of the Empty Tomb in Paul's Words

The Easter thought is thus phrased by St. Paul: "If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above. Set your affections on things above, not on things on the earth. Mortify therefore your members which are upon the earth; fornication, uncleanness, inordinate affection, evil concupiscence, and covetousness, which is idolatry; for which things' sake the wrath of God cometh in the children of disobedience: in the which ye also walked some time, when ye lived in them." Men have thought and preached so much about the empty tomb, in their effort to prove the resurrection as to have entirely overlooked the question asked by the angel of the resurrection. "Why seek ye the living among the dead?" That has been what many have been doing for twenty centuries, and are still doing. There were those whom the empty tomb did not convince—the women thought the body had been stolen. It is indeed written of one of the disciples that, when he entered the tomb, "he saw and believed."

Of St. Peter it is written: "Then arose Peter, and ran into the sepulcher; and stooping down, he beheld the linen clothes laid by themselves, and departed, wondering in himself at that which was come to pass"—plainly he was not convinced, but bewildered. What did convince His disciples was communion with Him, a renewal of the old association and fellowship, the happy consciousness of His presence which they knew would be an abiding one, and the tender words that He spoke to them. Then it was that they knew He was alive, alive forevermore, and realized that they were called to follow a living and not a dead Leader. They saw that "in Him was life; and the light was the life of men." Also they realized—and they never lost their grip on the thought—that death and the grave were but the gate opening on a larger, finer, happier and nobler life.

"Because I live, ye shall live also"—such was the assurance given by Christ to His disciples on the eve of His departure from them. It was the assurance of a life unbroken by death, of continued and uninterrupted fellowship with Himself. Argument on the subject is, and ever has been, for the most part futile. The most that has ever been proved was that there was a moral probability of immortality—and that is much. But for the Christian, Easter is the festival of the life eternal, and he must feel that the assurance of his Master—"Because I live, ye shall live also"—is as truly for him as for those to whom the words were first spoken. Yet comparatively few Christians, it is feared, give much thought to the subject—perhaps because they shrink from the contemplation of death. And that is to be regretted. There are some doctrines held and preached by the churches which ought to be, and in time will be, abandoned, but the doctrine of immortality is not one of them. On the contrary, it should be more and more stressed, for it may be, as it was in the first days of Christianity, a great power in human life. It will be remembered that St. Paul was sure that there was laid up for him "a crown of righteousness." It might be expected that he would have said "a crown of life." But "a crown of righteousness" is a crown of life, for righteousness is itself life. So we are privileged to enter into the joy of another Easter, and once more to think of it as the foretaste of an immortality which is in truth—or may be—a present possession. Arnold puts it well, though perhaps somewhat severely:

No, no! the energy of life may be Kept on after the grave, but not begun;
And he who flagged not in the earthly strife,
From strength to strength advancing—only he,
His soul well-knit, and all his battles won,
Mounts, and that hardly, to eternal life.

Easter

Long before the Christian religion gave Easter to the world to be observed as the day of Christ's resurrection, there had been an Easter to mark the return of spring, the annual resurrection of nature.

Christianity gave a new meaning to the day, but the underlying theme is the same as it has been for thousands and thousands of years. Easter is the embodiment of hope. It promises renewed fruitfulness of the earth, as it has for ages. It promises, in addition, renewed spiritual growth, as it has for 1,928 years.

Truths Brought Home

The intimations of immortality dwelt upon by poets, reasoned about by philosophers, fluttering in our hearts, again and again chilled by the cold winds of doubt, eclipsed by the fogs, are made to stand forth clearly in the light of Easter day. The spiritual in us is made to glow, the spiritual about us is set forth in its splendor. Our highest hopes seem reasonable. Great impulses are stirred within us. And we are aware of the splendor that ties

All things of the earth with the things of the skies.

Easter Toys

The children take for Easter joys
The bunnies, eggs and other toys.
But fairer symbols of the day,
Themselves, the children are who play.

Champion Trotting Horse Bolts Track to Eat Grass

An inordinate appetite for fresh grass is the reason for the wearing of blinkers by Uranie, France's champion trotting mare and about the only trotter in Europe which can turn in around two minutes for the mile.

The possessor of a kindly temper, the mare, calm and cool at the post, never shies or breaks during a race and horsemen were inquiring of Trainer Capovilla why he found it necessary to put blinkers on her.

"So that she won't run out if she sees a grass patch alongside the track," Capovilla replied. "She pulled that stunt on me once in Brussels when as a three-year-old and leading her field by 20 yards, she suddenly halted and bolted into the landscape."

He explained that Uranie was allowed to roam at large in the fields near Bordeaux until she was nearly three years old and she could never get out of the habit of nibbling a few blades of grass, regardless of time, place or conditions.

Many Nationalities Now Playing Ball in Africa

Baseball has come to northern Africa at last, and in the shadow of ancient Carthage "El Bingo," the Babe Ruth of the most natural sand diamonds in the world, is a greater hero than the illustrious warrior Hannibal.

An American, Dr. C. Guyer Kelley, of the board of foreign missions, introduced the game at Tunis, Northern Africa, and such was the enthusiastic response of the Arab youth that the Tunisian league, comprising no fewer than 16 clubs, was organized within a month after the first ball was pitched.

Nine races are represented among the players, nearly as many nationalities playing as there are gloves and bats. French, Spanish, Italian, Maltese, Arab, Kabyle, Jewish, Greek and Turkish players, more than 300 of them, share 32 gloves and have about 40 bats to wield.

As Fighters Grow Rich They Become Very Timid

Funny how these top-rank fighters begin to moan in advance over injuries they seldom receive and for which, if received, they would be amply compensated. While they are preliminary battlers, they take all manner of risks without a murmur. Pride of craft and a ham sandwich are all the rewards they crave. As they climb and become big earners, they become more precious to themselves—and that's why we are having so many clinching matches and glove-grabbing contests as compared to heart-whole fights of the Dempsey-Firpo type.

Enjoyable Trip

"The trip to the West coast for the East-West football game was one of the most enjoyable experiences that I have ever had," says Chuck Bennett of Indiana.

"They treated us splendidly during all of our stay in 'Frisco. Food? If we had eaten all that was placed before us we would never have been able to play football."

According to Bennett, the motto of Nowack of Illini was "a gallon o' guts and a bucket o' blood."

CONNIE MACK IN HIS 29TH SEASON

McGraw Has Won More Pennants Than Manager of A's.

This year is Connie Mack's twenty-ninth season with the Athletics and John McGraw's twenty-seventh with the Giants.

At sixty-seven Connie Mack begins another term with his Athletics, a club he directed even before the best days of Chief Bender, Eddie Plank, Eddie Coombs, Amos Strunk, Eddie Collins, Frank Baker, Rube Oldring and others of the great old Philadelphia machine that swept the baseball world in three of the four years between 1910 and 1913.

McGraw, Mack's junior by eleven years, has been showing the Giants the way to preseason headquarters ever since 1903. His career has been even more remarkable than that of the A's chieftain, as the Little Napoleon has won ten pennants to Mack's six. Both have three world's championships to their credit.

Perhaps these old masters of the game are not as spry as when they first assumed charge of their clubs, but they have the enthusiasm of managers half their age.

McGraw is with his Giants at San Antonio, his bulky form inclosed in much yardage of flannels, calling instructions to his hopefuls and taking a bat occasionally to shoot a grounder or a fly out to a player under special scrutiny.

Over at Fort Myers, Fla., is the dignified Mack, dressed in mufti, with the inevitable piece of program or newspaper in hand, wigwagging to this player or that how to play for certain types of batters.

Connie Mack became manager of the Athletics in 1901. His team won pennants in 1902, 1905, 1910, 1911, 1913 and 1914 and world's championships in 1910, 1911 and 1913.

McGraw directed the Giants for the first time in 1903. His teams captured flags in 1904, 1905, 1911, 1912, 1913, 1917, 1921, 1922, 1923 and 1924, together with world titles in 1905, 1921 and 1922.

"Another Mathewson" in Big Show From Bucknell

Almost a generation ago Bucknell sent Christy Mathewson, baseball and football star, into the National league. Matty had a hard time for a while, New York sending him to Norfolk, only to get him back in a trade for Amos Rusie after Cincinnati had taken Matty for a trial.

Now comes Bucknell with "another Mathewson." The young man's name is Ed Halicki, and he is better known to followers of football than to those who are interested in college baseball.

Like Matty, Halicki was a great back, a fine kicker. Like Matty, Halicki has made his mark as a varsity hurler. And now comes the word that in June Halicki will report to the St. Louis Cardinals.

It's about time the colleges gave the majors a real pitcher. Varsity baseball has sent up quite a few first-rate fielders in recent years, but its contributions to the pitching ranks have been few and none too successful.

Wales to Sell Stable; Keeps Faithful Hunter

There is one horse in the stables of the prince of Wales that will never leave its royal master no matter how urgently his new responsibilities require the prince to abandon hunting.

It is the hunter, "Just An Idea," which has won special affection, carrying the prince through six seasons without a single falter. This master of the hounds was unavailable only once, when it was laid up a few weeks after straining its back taking a fence.

The faithful hunter's retirement to the prince's farm at Lenton was disclosed in the catalogue announcing the sale of his hunters in view of his decision to curtail hunting activities. The catalogue read:

"Entire stud with exception of one old horse."

Barton Jumps Nicely

Billy Barton, Howard Bruce's American-bred candidate for the Grand National, is doing well and his stable connections have great hopes of winning the race. J. Wilkins, head man at the Hon. Aubrey Hasting's establishment, said. "We took Billy out for some jumping practice, and he took the jumps in fine style. He is in good condition after the winter. He eats well and is jumping finely. We have every hope of winning the big race this year."

If Back Hurts Flush Kidneys

Drink Plenty of Water and Take Glass of Salts Before Breakfast Occasionally

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulate them to their normal activity.

The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grape and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

War on Insects

Atlantic City.—The future will see a "titanic" struggle for existence waged between man and insects, members of the New Jersey Mosquito Extermination association were told by Dr. L. O Howard, chief entomologist of the United States Department of Agriculture.

"Insects now consume each year the equivalent of the labor of a million men," Doctor Howard said. "They have a great advantage over human beings both anatomically and physically. Man's superior intelligence is all that has enabled him to even begin to check the advance of insects. A serious struggle is ahead.

"Rapidity of motion, and frequency of multiplication, quick adaptation to conditions, powers of concealment and no long period of helpless infancy, are some of the advantages that insects have over men."

As a means of preparing for the battle with insects, Doctor Howard suggests that colleges and universities devote more attention to entomology as a step in the mobilization of a trained army of insect fighters capable of waging successful warfare against the enemy.

The importance of oiling small bodies of water and emptying casks and tin cans containing water was emphasized as a means of holding mosquitoes in check.

Women Cured of Leprosy Stay on With Lepers

Carrville, La.—Because there is no one outside who cares for them two women pronounced cured of leprosy have chosen to spend the remainder of their lives in the United States leprosarium here.

One woman has spent 25 of her 70 years here and the other 14 of her 28. Both told authorities their relatives were unwilling for them to return home. "So, if you don't mind, we'll just stay here," they told Dr. O. E. Denney, chief physician in charge of the colony.

They are the first in the history of the leper colony ever to remain after they had been pronounced cured. Cure of the dread disease is rare. In the history of the colony only 40 persons have been pronounced cured, Doctor Denney said.

Air Monarch Trained

New York.—Capt. C. W. R. Knight of England recently demonstrated his trained golden eagle before an audience of about 20 bird enthusiasts on the estate of George Palmer Putnam on Long Island sound. Mr. Putnam explained that the flight was merely to give the bird exercise and that the bird enthusiasts, some of whom were members of the Explorers' club, had been given permission to view the eagle.

The eagle weighs about 16 pounds and has been trained to retrieve game and other objects thrown by Captain Knight. The eagle, which is being kept at the Bronx zoo, was brought to the Putnam estate in a closed car by Captain Knight and was kept blindfolded until ready for the "exercises." Captain Knight explained that he was better able to keep the bird under control when it was blindfolded.

As soon as the blind was removed from the bird's eyes the eagle perched on Captain Knight's shoulder. Captain Knight threw pieces of meat and dead rabbits as far as he could, and these were brought back to him by the eagle.

Among those who witnessed the flight was Capt. Bob Bartlett of the Morrissey, who took the Putnam expedition to the Arctic.

BEING YOURSELF

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

I suppose we are all more or less imitators. We have our secret heroes whose exploits and accomplishments and particular methods and manners we try to reproduce in our play upon the stage of life, and we have pointed out to us by our mothers and our wives examples which it would be good for us to follow and models which we would do well to copy.

Bill Thompson was the model which mother selected for my ideal of conduct and accomplishment. If I could only be as good a boy as Bill was all would be well with me in this world and the next. If I could do my work as carefully and conscientiously as he did success would reward my efforts, and the way in which he helped his mother about the house was gratifying to all the neighbors. Bill and I never got on well together. I disliked him from the start and profited very little, I am afraid, from his noble example.

Nancy has pointed out to me often what wonderful manners Seth Taylor has—how careful he is with his teeth and his finger nails. They simply glitter with the high polish which constant attention gives them. And he is one of the most thoughtful and tactful men she has ever met. He doesn't make much of a hit with me in spite of his slick appearance.

I ran onto Chester when I was out West a few weeks ago, and we got to talking about his uncle who is a professor in one of the eastern colleges now—psychology or sociology or psychiatry he professes. The uncle has been abroad some and studied for a while in New England. He was born in Ludlow or Fisher or some near-by Illinois village and ran across the prairies bare-footed like the rest of us. He used as much slang and bad grammar as any other native born and flattened his a's beautifully; but he picked up a wonderful manner and exaggerated New England pronunciation somewhere and is now no more like himself than Lindbergh is like Charlie Chaplin. He's a joke to anyone who knew him when he was a boy, for his manner and his pronunciation and his assumed erudition are a disguise which tends to hide his real self.

It's a mistake to try to be anyone else or to imitate anyone else. The great men of the world, no matter how little the world is in which they do their work, have been individual. They have gone at things in their own particular way. They have not tried to stifle their own personality or to camouflage it by pretending to be something that they are not.

I met Jimmy Dawson last May. Irish Jimmy is, with a sense of humor. He's been everywhere in the world since I last saw him thirty years ago. He's met great men in all countries; he's a great man himself—rich and influential, but he's still at heart the same hearty, natural, unaffected Irishman I knew when he was a lad. He's himself.

Robots Serve Public

London.—Although England's first Robot was created only a few short months ago, he already has six brothers ranging in height from Jasper's six feet six, to little Rupert's five feet ten.

Despite their tender ages the services of all seven have been hired out under the contract-labor system during the schoolboy's exhibition at Horticultural hall, and soon after the exhibition closes the Robot family will be broken up and the brothers sent out to different railway stations and street corners to take 24-hour-a-day jobs answering questions and giving directions. A pathetic fate for such youngsters, that would seem to call for intervention on the part of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children!

How these dully gleaming giants of steel work has now been revealed for the first time in connection with the schoolboys' exhibit, where Rupert, a bright little fellow, is to be seen with his chest and head cut open and all his insides revealed. Young John Bull, Jr., presses a button on Rupert's tummy. Almost instantly lights stare from under Rupert's heavy eyebrows and a voice incredibly deep for such a youngster booms out: "What do you want to know?"

Young John, startled, stutters: "P-please, where can I get a bite to eat?"

"Take the third aisle on your left and walk straight on," booms the voice. Then the lights die out and Rupert is once again a senseless structure of cold steel.

Bewildered, young John follows the directions, and sure enough, walks straight into a restaurant.

Now what has happened is this: When the youth pushed the button on Rupert's tummy a light showed on a switchboard in front of a man at a table in a control room.

He immediately "plugged in" on Rupert, lighting up Rupert's eyes and establishing a telephonic contact with a microphone hidden behind a silver gauze-covered hole in Rupert's front. Thus the man at the central control station heard young John's question and he promptly answered back by telephone, his words being amplified by a loud speaker in Rupert's chest.

If the question asked is a "sticker," the man at the control station, and through him, Rupert says: "Wait a minute," and the right answer is looked up in handy reference books. One man in the central office, it is declared, will in this way be able to handle the questions asked of, say, a dozen or more Robots installed in a railway station, big shops, hotels, or even on street corners, and it is predicted that within the next few years these grim formidable Robot servants will be commonplace sights in all large cities.

Grain Links History of Egypt, Abyssinia

Leningrad, U. S. S. R.—The hints of Herodotus that the ancient Egyptians and the Abyssians were somehow connected has been corroborated by botany.

According to investigations of the well-known Russian botanist, K. A. Flaxenburg, a striking likeness is now established between the old Egyptian emmer found in the sarcophagus of the priests of the twelfth dynasty and the Abyssinian samples collected by the Vavilov expedition in 1927. These Egyptian specimens differ strongly from other forms of emmer and especially from the Persian form in which some scientists found grain.

From Abyssinia the emmer is believed to have spread to Arabia, India and Egypt. In Persia forms arose which are allied to the Abyssinian ones. In Serbia other forms differentiated which approach the Abyssinian types. The Russian emmer originated from these Serbian forms.

Takes Ores From Mud as Did Ancient Greeks

Miami, Okla.—A machine designed by W. A. Butchart of Joplin, Mo., is reclaiming millions of dollars in ore that formerly went into the waste piles. Twenty-five centuries ago Herodotus referred to the recovery of gold from the mud by means of feathers daubed with pitch.

Today oil and various chemical reagents are used to recover valuable zinc and lead ore from slimes, or mineralized mud, and from waste piles of tailings that at one time were considered virtually valueless.

DIPPING INTO SCIENCE

Why Damp Clothing Injures.

The reason we catch cold from sleeping on damp sheets or from wearing damp clothes is because the dampness absorbs the heat from our bodies more rapidly than they can make it up. This lowers our power of resistance, making us more susceptible to the disease germs which provoke colds, pneumonia, bronchitis, etc.

Back to the Arctic for Him

Denver Mother Tells Story

Nature controls all the functions of our digestive organs except one. We have control over that, and it's the function that causes the most trouble.

See that your children form regular bowel habits, and at the first sign of bad breath, coated tongue, biliousness or constipation give them a little California Fig Syrup. It regulates the bowels and stomach and gives these organs tone and strength so they continue to act as Nature intends them to. It helps build up and strengthen pale, listless underweight children. Children love its rich, fruity taste and it's purely vegetable, so you can give it as often as your child's appetite lags or he seems feverish, cross or fretful.

Leading physicians have endorsed it for 50 years, and its overwhelming sales record of over four million bottles a year shows how mothers depend on it. A Western mother, Mrs. R. W. Stewart, 4112 Raritan St., Denver, Colorado, says: "Raymond was terribly pulled down by constipation. He got weak, fretful and cross, had no appetite or energy and food seemed to sour in his stomach. California Fig Syrup had him romping and playing again in just a few days, and soon he was back to normal weight looking better than he had looked in months."

Protect your child from imitations of California Fig Syrup. The mark of the genuine is the word "California" on the carton.

Vibrator Spreads Pollen

In raising tomatoes under glass, a western grower simplifies the task of spreading pollen by using a vibrator operated with current from small batteries. It taps the blossoms lightly but with a frequency many times greater than is possible by hand.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Stung to Death by Wasps

As the result of having been stung by wasps, seven-year-old Wannie Atchi Kankanage Don Samel has died at Pallatera, Ceylon. A girl reported that she was attracted by the boy's cries, and found more than 50 wasps attacking him as he rolled on the ground screaming in agony. She fought the insects off, and medical aid was called, but the lad died soon afterward.

YOU CAN'T DYE with Good Intentions

You can get results—after a fashion—with any old dye; but to do work you are proud of takes real anilines. That's why we put them in Diamond Dyes. They contain from three to five times more than other dyes on the market! Cost more to make? Surely. But you get them for the same price as other dyes.

Next time you want to dye, try them. See how easy it is to use them. Then compare the results. Note the absence of that re-dyed look; of streaking or spotting. See that they take none of the life out of the cloth. Observe how the colors keep their brilliance through wear and washing. Your dealer will refund your money if you don't agree Diamond Dyes are better dyes.

The white package of Diamond Dyes is the original "all-purpose" dye for any and every kind of material. It will dye or tint silk, wool, cotton, linen, rayon or any mixture of materials. The blue package is a special dye, for silk or wool only. With it you can dye your valuable articles of silk or wool with results equal to the finest professional work. When you buy—remember this. The blue package dyes silk or wool only. The white package will dye every kind of goods, including silk and wool. Your dealer has both packages.

The Bank and How To Use It

The Note Department of the Modern Bank is the agency through which the Credit Department functions. In other words customers' loans are arranged by the Credit Department but the transaction is completed by the Note Department. This department attends to all payments, both principal and interest, and all of the other details relating to the life of the loan transaction.

If a man wishes to obtain a loan on any listed stocks or bonds his needs are taken care of by the Note Department. It will also handle the purchase or sale of any listed security for a customer. In addition it handles all of the commercial paper purchased by the bank and all loans secured by all classes of collateral.

The customer of the Note Department needs not necessarily be a depositor of the bank but naturally every endeavor is made to obtain all of his banking business His contact with other banking functions in the same institution is a big aid to him in his relations with the Note Department.

The usual mortgages on real estate and farms are actively handled by the Note Department after having been negotiated by the Central Real Estate Department. There is a Note Department in every branch of the Bank of Italy and in addition the department at the head office in San Francisco will receive payments on account of both principal and interest on any loan for any branch. Such details as assignments of deeds of trust and assignments of contract, which means that such instruments have been placed in the hands of the bank for administration, are also handled by the Note Department.

The customer or prospective customer who takes the time to investigate this department will find innumerable ways in which it can serve him. The credit field of the modern bank is usually a vast one and the Note Department ramifies that field thoroughly to show the customer how he may proceed most profitably with his credit transaction.

Songs of Plain Folks

By James Lewis Hays

When I Grow Up

A bull pup in each bedroom,
Chewing on a bone;
That's what I'll have in my house
When I am grown.

A pony on the back porch;
White rabbits on the stair;
And, though 'twill be a big house,
No bath tub anywhere.

A room just full of jack-knives
And wooden things to make;
Another full of pirate books,
Another full of cake.

I'll have fireworks every night
And make a lot of noise,
And picture shows each morning
For all my girls and boys.

My floors will be real slipp'ry,
With little rugs that slide—
And, then, I think that I shall sleep
In a tepee just outside.

The recall election takes place next Tuesday and from present indications a full vote will be brought out. This paper has taken no part in the campaign, believing the voters are well informed on the subject. The Times-Gazette has given a detailed account of the proceedings of each meeting of the city council for months, so that every citizen has knowledge of the workings of the council and is in a position to judge the merits or demerits of the arguments against the accused councilmen. The election will take place at the city hall. The officers of the election are: Mrs. Buehla H. Bowers, inspector; Mrs. Louisa Aabel, judge; Mrs. Irene Boone, Mrs. Jessie Snover and Mrs. S. Tupper, Clerks.

Too Fast For Motor Bandits

These hard hitting Westfield, N. J., officers sent their Nash "400" Special coupe to seventy-three miles an hour the other day in a five-mile chase of fleeing automobile bandits. The thrilling race ended when the bandits, pressed to the last ounce of speed in their big sedan by the police car, overturned in attempting to negotiate a sharp turn, and were gathered in by the officers. The police departments now equipped with the fast, steady Nash "400" are marked "detour" on bandit schedules.

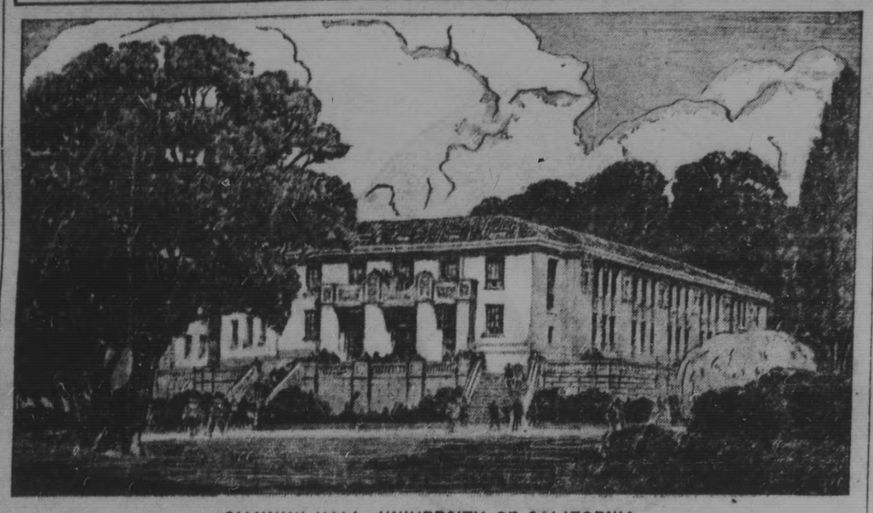
California's Contribution To Farm Relief



GIANNINI HALL, UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA

THE task of increasing, through scientific formulae, the size of the California farmer's bank account and reducing the number of mortgages, deeds of trust and promissory notes in his safe deposit box, has been undertaken by the State of California through the construction on its university campus at Berkeley of an experimental station in the tremendously vital field of agricultural economics. This new station, an imposing unit in the already dominant agricultural group at the University, will cost $500,000 and will be known as Giannini Hall. It will have an additional $1,000,000 as a working fund. Both amounts were donated by A. P. Giannini, prominent San Francisco and New York banker. All of the work of the station will be directed by the newly organized Giannini Foundation of Agricultural Economics, formed for the purpose of administering the fund.

Real Relief in Sight

Already an interesting program has been mapped out, which will concern itself chiefly with the proper selection of land by the farmer and orchardist, and the most reasonable, profitable and expeditious handling of the crops produced. In addition, such items as the broken down or the ill-favored farm or orchard will be studied and the depressing question of farm debt will be given particular consideration. In short, the station will attempt to put California agriculture and horticulture as a whole on a business basis.

Giannini Hall will be noted for its beauty as well as its great utility. It will be both a monumental structure in the modern architectural sense, and a structure that will conform closely to its natural environment of grassy undulations, mosaics of wild and formal blossoms and massive, moss festooned oaks. Its architecture and atmosphere will suggest its duties in every respect, from the carved figurations of farm activities and energies that will adorn its exterior and its entrances, to the quiet calm of its secluded studies and library rooms.

In general dimensions the building will be 280 feet over all, 64 feet through the center and 58 feet high. Each of the wings will be 63 feet wide. There will be a ground, main, second and third floor.

The building will make up the completement of the imposing agricultural square from which Agriculture Hall, the main building, looks out toward the West. It will resemble Hilgard Hall, another unit, but only in so far as it is necessary to make the units of the square conform generally. In every other sense it will be an individual and distinctive structure. Two noteworthy features will be conventionalized graven figures symbolic of the energies of agricultural economics, placed along the eastern facades, and a two story recessed portico, set off by decorative piers, on the west front.

The structure will house many diverse activities, all of them relating to the present pressing farm burdens. On the first or main floor will be the offices of the Foundation Director and the Dean of the College of Agriculture. This floor will also contain class rooms and experimental rooms of the State Division of Forestry. The second floor will be given over to the general offices of the Foundation, a department of forestry administration and a department of farm management. The third floor will contain offices of the National Park Service, the California Farm Bureau Federation, a department of irrigation investigation, a forestry experimental station and a unit of the Department of Entomology. The ground floor will contain archives and storage space.

All Agriculture Helped

Through a decided change in the formal arrangement of corridors the building will achieve a new maximum of roominess and light. This change allows for a tier of small rooms, ideally suited for offices and on the opposite side, a tier of larger rooms for class and experimentation purposes.

The campus of the University of California is one of the most beautiful and distinctive in the world and Giannini Hall will face its greatest beauties. The landscape, broken by the great oaks that abound here, is perennially green. As a matter of pure convenience and utility the Hall is ideally situated, facing the main arteries of the student movement and being directly in the center of university life.

Giannini Hall is to be completed within a year and a half, or in time for the opening of the Fall semester of 1930.

With the completion of its agricultural square at the University of California, the state will be in a position to take care of every phase of agriculture from the moment that the farmer or grower starts in search of a suitable piece of land until his crops are placed on the tables of the ultimate consumers throughout the world.

Sacramento—Government appropriated $187,000 for river and harbor improvements along Sacramento river.

County Unit Bill Succeeded by Act For Consolidation

SACRAMENTO, Mar. 29—(CNB)—As a peace- time annexation measure to take the place of the compulsory methods of the Baum County Unit School bill, now definitely dead, the Bernard school bill is offered today by the Assembly Education Committee.

Reviving the terms of the old Eden Act, the bill introduced by Assemblyman Van Bernard of Butte City provides that upon recommendation of the county superintendent of schools of San Mateo county, the board of supervisors of that county may annex any elementary school district not already within a high school district to the most accessible district.
